Dear Soltronix,

Octanium.com would like to thank you for your recent engineering work for our firm. Your services allowed us to take our rough design from the prototype stage with a substandard manufacturing setup, and transform it into a professional quality manufactured product with the ability to handle fluctuations in supply and demand for customers all around the world.

Working from our rough sketches, you created very professional documentation of our design. By suggesting new suppliers we lowered the cost of manufacturing substantially. The mechanical design capabilities impressed me as you created a better design and more easily manufactured enclosure. I was very impressed with the professionalism and the attention to details with the manufacturing specification/assembly documents you created. You initiated a manufacturing scenario that allowed us a versatile strategy for balancing the supply and demand while maintaining favorable margins.

The quality system and procurement department is top-notch and provides us with the means to keep track of all the products that are shipped should service ever be required.

It was a pleasure working with you and I look forward to working with you again in the future.

Sincerely,

Jeff Mucha
